Such claims shall be sent as soon as possible to the seller, using any means that permits obtaining acknowledgment of receipt, and, if applicable, shall be reported in writing to the travel organiser and the provider of the relevant services;
- 13° The deadline for informing the buyer in the event the seller cancels a travel or holiday package that requires a minimum number of participants, in accordance with the provisions of Article R. 211-4;

Article R211-7

Before the contract takes effect, the buyer may assign his contract to an assignee who fulfills the same conditions as the buyer for the travel or holiday package. Except if a more favorable time limit is stipulated, the assignor shall inform the seller of his decision, using any means that permits obtaining acknowledgment of receipt, no later than seven days before the start of travel. In the case of a cruise, this time limit is extended to 15 days. Such assignment shall in no event require the seller's prior authorization.

Article R211-8

If the contract includes an express price revision

clause, within the limits prescribed by Article L. 212-12, the contract shall state the precise methods for calculating any price changes, whether it is an increase or a decrease, in particular, the transport costs and the taxes applicable thereto, the currency or currencies that may have an impact on the price of the travel or holiday package, the portion and the currency rate(s) being used as the reference when the price specified in the contract was established.

Article R211-9

Where, prior to the departure of the purchaser, the vendor is forced to modify one of the core elements of the contract, such as a significant price increase, and disregards the obligation to inform the purchaser as stipulated in paragraph 13 of Article R. 211-4, the purchaser, without affecting its right to seek damages, and having been informed of the modification by the vendor using any means whereby receipt of this information can be verified, can take the following action:

- either terminate the contract and receive an immediate and complete reimbursement of all monies paid;
- or accept the modification or substitute package proposed by the vendor; in this case an additional clause stipulating the changes must be signed by both parties; a price decrease is to be deducted from any amounts still owed by the purchaser or, if the payment already made by the purchaser exceeds the price of the modified service, the excess amount is to be returned to the purchaser prior to departure.

Article R211-10

In the circumstances provided for in Article L. 211-14, where prior to the purchaser's departure the vendor cancels the journey or stay, the latter must inform the purchaser using any means whereby receipt of this information can be verified; the purchaser, without affecting its right to seek damages, then secures an immediate and complete reimbursement of all amount paid; and in this case the purchaser also receives compensation that is at least equal to the penalty that would have been due if the cancellation had been made by the purchaser on the same date. The provisions of this article in no way prevent the parties from reaching an amicable agreement whereby the purchaser accepts the substitute journey or stay proposed by the vendor.

Article R211-11

If, following the purchaser's departure, the vendor is unable to provide a significant proportion of the services outlined in the contract, and where this represents a non-negligible percentage of the price paid by the purchaser, the vendor must immediately take the following steps, without affecting the right of either party to claim damages:

- either offer replacement services in lieu of the agreed services, covering any additional costs involved, and, where the services accepted by the purchaser are of an inferior quality, reimburse the price difference upon the purchaser's return;
- or, where the vendor cannot offer any replacement services or where they are refused by the purchaser for valid reasons, provide the purchaser, at no extra cost, with the means to return to the departure location or any other location accepted by both parties in conditions deemed to be equivalent to those of the originally planned journey. The provisions of this article are applicable where there is a failure to respect the obligation stipulated in paragraph 13 of Article R.211-4.

Specific terms of sale

These specific terms of sale have been drawn up in compliance with the provisions of the Tourism Code, which sets the regulations for carrying out activities relating to the organisation and sale of travel and holidays, international conventions, the Civil and Commercial Codes.

It is stipulated that the present specific terms and conditions govern solely to travel and holidays marketed by Music & Opera and to relations with its Customers on the date of booking and are valid in their version given to the Customer at the time of booking.

These specific terms of sale and the description of the services provided to the Customer at the time of booking define the rights and obligations of the parties stipulated in Article R. 211-4 of the Tourism Code, and in some cases to the specific payment and cancellation terms pertaining to certain services. In the latter case, the specific conditions indicated on the description of the product will prevail over the text of the specific terms of sale.

Prior information including price, cancellation, transportation terms and the course of the stay and accommodation may be subject to change after it has been issued and communicated to the Customer; the Client will be informed of the new terms before signing the contract.

The customer is deemed to have consented to, understood and agreed with anything contained in those terms and conditions before proceeding the reservation. Failure to accept all or part of the Conditions by the Customer will result in the Customer waiving the benefits provided by Music & Opera.

Please indicate on the travel contract that you are insured individually. We decline any responsibility in case of difficulty with your insurer if its services do not cover the conditions or the activities of the stay. We reserve the right to charge you if additional costs are incurred for your repatriation.

In case of cancellation, insurance premiums and visa fees will not be refunded.

The insurance «Booking Protect» does not apply to travel.
